RESIDENTS WANT SERVICE

Appeal to City Council for Relief.

CITY RAILWAY COMPANY

Will be Asked to Fulfill the Promise Made.

People Residing on Davis Street Have Axes to Grind—Council fails to Hold Session.

That the residents of Davis street are nearing the limits of their patience over the local and interurban car service, was clearly demonstrated by the large number of persons residing on Davis street, present at the meeting of the city council Monday evening. One resident, saying that he "could be good for a little while", inquired if street car service could be had on his street, explaining that since the base ball season no service had been given on Davis street. Member J. V. Wilson assured the residents that service would be given although by the franchise the council cannot compel the railway to give the needed service.

The matter of having city service on Davis street was not considered, when the franchise was given and now as the service is needed during the winter as well as in the base ball season the council will make every effort to accommodate the people.

It was not long, while discussing the merits as well as the demerits of the local railway service, until the council members decided to see that interurban cars stop at any and all places along their lines for passengers according to the franchise given them. One of the dignified councilmen related how he had sprinted at a cheerful rate across the country and having reached the track waved his handkerchief and hat in a manner becoming to the red man only, to have the car speed merrily by and this on Davis street.

The council is prone to bring the car company to the terms of its franchise and expects to do so. In regard to the local open cars it was stated that closed cars will be here for the winter use in the very near future.

No business was transacted at the meeting Monday evening, a quorum not being present, when President Rauhauser took his chair. Upon the motion of J. V. Wilson and seconded by Mr. Mason it was decided to meet next Monday evening in regular session and transact the large amount of business now pending before the council. The session last evening was one of open discussion, in which many complaints were considered.

ATTACKED BY HOLD-UP MEN

Elmer Leffler Has Narrow Escape.

DODGES A HEAVY CLUB

Which the Robbers Swung With Great Force.

Supposed Victim Had Considerable Money on His Person—Whips up His Horse and Escapes.

Dodging the blow of a heavy club and then whipping his horse, Elmer Leffler, who drives the delivery wagon for the Leffler meat market on Elm street succeeded in getting away from a bold and desperate gang of hold-up-men about 9 o'clock Monday night.

Leffler had made practically all of his deliveries and was returning to the market, having considerable money in his pockets. As he entered the alley, two men jumped out and one struck at him with a club, while the other tried to grab the reins. Both men cried "halt" but that was the last thing the would be victim thought of doing and whipping up the horse he drove away from his pursuers.

The drivers father-in-law, Mr. Patterson was with him on the wagon at the time and both men were pretty thoroughly frightened over their narrow escape. Where the hold-up club struck the brace on the top of the wagon, there is a heavy dint in the wood. Had the blow fell true both men would have been seriously injured.

Later in the evening, Mr. Edward Leffler, proprietor of the market, looked the store and started home, but to his astonishment found that a man was following him and he returned to the market where he remained all night.

Railroad Notes

The Erie and Big Four Railroads today put into service several hundred new freight cars. On this division new freight cars. In this division of the road the largest number were received as the scarcity of freight cars here has been an alarming situation in freight traffic.

Cars have been supplied to all roads as rapidly as they can be made. The situation on the Hocking Valley is even worse than on the other roads for very often the officials of that road are compelled to reject many orders for freight traffic. The freight managers hope that during the coming winter the traffic may lull and thus give relief to the present conditions.

Several hundred immigrants of various nationalities passed through Marion early this morning. The foreigners were of an extremely low class.
